Dear Hiring Manager

I am a Full-stack Software Engineer with a proven track record of being reliable, able to adapt quickly and build a team with my leadership skills. I have a passion for working with people to look deeper into problems to create solutions for complex issues that change the way things are done or optimize existing practices. I believe that the skills and experiences from my past endeavors make me a valuable asset to your team.

With my experience in the military, it has instilled in me a strong sense of accountability, work ethic, problem-solving under pressure, being part of the team and able to adapt to whatever comes my way. Pairing these abilities with my skill set as a full stack software developer, I am able to craft solutions to complex problems in addition to providing phenomenal user experiences.

Currently, I am working at Movial as a contractor for T-Mobile building out enterprise level software that utilizing ReactJS and Redux, Typescript and many more to create a product that is user friendly and design to scale as needed. We build our product with a test-driven development mindset to ensure clean and efficient codebase.

I look forward to the chance to learn more about this position and discuss how my experience may contribute to the success of the team.

Sincerely, Heath A. Smith